

Set in stone

Heavily veined marble continues its reign and we love this contemporary take on the classic look, which adds modular furniture in hi-gloss finishes to the mix. Crono bath, £5,999; double wash basins, £3,122; Anthracite vanity unit, £2,473; mirror cabinet, £2,800, all Ripples.

Gilded edges

Used in moderation, rich gold accents will bring sophistication rather than bling to your bathroom. Pair this look with a slick monochrome palette for a sharp contrast that's strong and bold. In response to the gold revival, Merlyn Showering has launched a gold option to its 8 Series shower enclosure range, which starts from £1,495.

Go bespoke

In an awkward-shaped room with tricky architectural details, it can pay to invest in a custom-made solution such as this fitted bathroom suite with built-in cabinetry by Cue & Co of London. Stud walls with storage niche alcoves help separate the wet room shower and dressing area, while framing the statement bath. A similar bathroom would cost around £26,400.
